A FEARLESS CONVICT.

STEADMAN'S DARING ESCAPE FROM SAN QUENTIN PRISON.

It is one thing to catch a thief and it Monday Junior Epworth League, 6:45 is another thing to hold him. During a m. Wednesday prayer meeting meeting of the chiefs of police of all the larger cities of the United States and Canada, which occurred at Milwaukee, there were reminiscences of remarkable captures and of escapes which bordered closely upon the miraculous.

"The most remarkable escape from prison that I can recall," said William Pinkerton, "was that of Frank Steadman from the San Quentin prison. But I'll not tell you about it, for here is John Glass, who caught Steadman and sent him back to San Quentin."

Chief Glass pinched the brown imperial on his under lip reflectively for a moment before he responded to the looks of inquiry bent upon him by those not familiar with the story.

"The escape to which you refer, Pinkerton, was made after I sent Steadman to San Quentin and not before. I was not the fortunate one to get him after that last wonderful break. And to tell the truth, I have never taken to myself much credit for taking him the time I did, for it was to a considerable degree a matter of good fortune. You see, we were just at that time keeping our eyes open for a bank robber by the name of Barnes, who had gone into one of the banks out there, covered the one man Evening: "The Popular Man", being who happened to be alone in the place at the time, locked him up in the vault, and then coolly walked out of the bank and out of sight with all the funds he could get his hands on.

"One day a man answering closely the description we had of Barnes stepped off the train at Los Angeles. We Surday. | took him in tow at once, but found we did not have the bird we were after. However, we managed to hold him long enough to find out that he was Frank Steadman, who had become notorions even at that time as a successful afternoon at 3 oo o'clock. Sunday school jail breaker. He had four or five escapes from prison in southern Indiana credited to him, had got away from Joliet and had still seven years to do at the Illinois prison; had also been at San Quentin, and had escaped from there with five years unfinished.

"Steadman was a machinist by profession, and a burglar by inclination. Evening subject; "The Exclusiveness | When he was sent back to San Quentin to finish his time, he was put to work with other convicts in the engine room. It was here that an idea came into his brain that for absolute daring and fearlessness was typical of the man. He had noticed that every evening at the time the men working in the engine room were lined up to be marched away, the machinery was stopped at exactly the same moment. He had observed as well that a window leading to an adjacent roof was not far from the top of the big Sabbath school at 2.30 p. m. at corner driving belt of the engine. From that roof it was possible to reach the outer wall of the prison. Beyond the wall was freedom. He had escaped so many times that his mind reverted again and again to the window high up on the wall of the engine room. Apparently it was beyond all possibility of being reached. No ladder was to be obtained Had such a thing been even standing in place against the wall, to break hn Huber, pastor. Preaching every dexterity, although the work of but a few seconds, he well knew would be faster than legs, and the guards were not bad shots. But desperate deeds demand desperate means. Some minds may work with an ingenuity born of despair, but Steadman's was of a different caliber. His plans were the out-"One day there came to him as if by inspiration the thought that the big belt might be the means of carrying him to his goal. Me found that it was impossible to count the revolutions of the driving wheel, but there were lacings in the broad belt, which he was able to distinguish as a sort of blur as it passed a given point. For days and days he counted, and in his cell at night he spent his time in calculations. He dispovered the exact number of revolutions the wheel made per minute. He learned also by constant observation just how many times the belt went round after the engine was shut down.

"One evening, when the line had been formed as usual at the close of the | 13. day's work and as the big wheel began to lose its momentum, suddenly a convict sprang from the line, leaped to the belt, with cutstretched arms grappling both edges of the broad leather. He has calculated well the strength that would be required, for the terrific wrench did not loosen his grasp. Ontward and up ward he swung until he reached the topmost point of the circumference. The nicety of his calculation had reaped its reward. The belt stopped. He leaped to his feet, sprang through the window and was gone before convicts or guards $2.00. had recovered from their astonishment. He caught up a guard's coat and hat, dropped from the wall and got away in the dusk of the evening. I am inclined to believe that as a mathematical proposition that was about as perfect a piece of work as any man eyer accomplished.' "And did he get away without recapture?" some one asked. 'No, I am almost sorry to say, be did not," answered the Los Angeles chief, 'for that ought by rights to be the de nonement of such a story, which com bines so much of daring and cleverness. However, we managed to hold him ong enough to find out that he was Frank Steadman, who had become notorious even at that time as a successful jail breaker. He had four or five escapes from prison in southern Indiana credited to him, had got away from Joliet and had still seven years to do at the Corner of Walnut and Branch Illinois prison; had also been at San Quentin, and had escaped from there with five years unfinished.

> 'Steadman was a machinist by profession, and a burglar by inclination When he was sent back to San Quentin to finish his time, he was put to work with other convicts in the engine room. It was here that an idea came into his brain that for absolute daring and fearlessness was typical of the man. He had noticed that every evening at the time the men working in the engine room were lined up to be marched away, th machinery was stopped at exactly th same moment. He had observed as well that a window leading to an adjacen roof was not far from the top of the big driving belt of the engine. From that roof it was possible to reach the outer wall of the prison. Beyond the wall was freedom. He had escaped so many times that his mind reverted again and again to the window high up on the wall of the engine room. Apparently it was beyond all possibility of being reached. No ladder was to be obtained. Had such a thing been in place against the wall, to break from the line and scale it with catlike futile, possibly fatal. Ballets travel faster than legs, and the guards were not bad shots. But desperate deeds de mand desperate means. Some minds despair, but Steadman's was of a different caliber. His plans were the out-

'One day there came to him as if by inspiration the thought that the big belt might be the means of carrying him to his goal. Me found that it was impossible to count the revolutions of the driving wheel, but there were lacings in distinguish as a sort of blur as it passed a given point. For days and days he counted, and in his cell at night he spent his time in calculations. He discovered the exact number of revolutions the wheel made per minute. He learned also by constant observation just how many times the belt went round after

been formed as usual at the close of the 13. day's work and as the big wheel began to lose its momentum, suddenly a convict sprang from the line, leaped to the belt, with cutstretched arms grappling both edges of the broad leather. He ha calculated well the strength that would be required, for the terrific wrench did not loosen his grasp. Ontward and up ward he swung until he reached the topmost point of the circumference. The nicety of his calculation had reaped its reward. The belt stopped. He leaped to were swollen and semitransparent. The his feet, sprang through the window and was gone before convicts or guards $2.00. had recovered from their astonishment He caught up a guard's coat and hat, dropped from the wall and got away in the dusk of the evening. I am inclined to believe that as a mathematical propo of work as any man ever accomplished. "And did he get away without recapture?" some one asked.

"No, I am almost sorry to say, be did not," answered the Los Angeles chief, for that ought by rights to be the de nonement of such a story, which combines so much of daring and cleverness Steadman was taken again in a short has been in camp at Chickamauga and time and put to work at his old job. This is the day fixed for Indiana democracy to "open up."

Mount against prize fighting is approved by the people of Indiana.

Some of the Indiana democrats who heard Leader Beiley last night and today are not very enthusiantic over the quality of the party's congressional leadership.

THE free street fair is giving Seymour more prominence just now than any other city in southern Indiana is having. It speaks much for the enterprise to our people.

WHILE it is probable that the Indiana regiments desire to get out of the service, it is to their credit that they have retained their military bearing and that the self-respect of the men will cause them to do their duty.

THERE is already evidence that the democrats, in their anxiety to make political capital, have overdone the criticism of the war department by spreading stories so ridiculously false as to carry their own refutation. It will not be the first time that democratic campaign stories have turned out to be boomerangs.

POLITICAL BREVITIES.

Vegetable Dropsy. Some experiments at Cornell unive sity have aroused much interest on ac count of the development of what appears to be a form of plant dropsy. Tomatoes grown in the warm, moist air of the forcing houses had leaves that were swollen and semitransparent. The swelling continued until the veins of the leaves burst and considerable liquid flowed out, This was caused by too much water at the roots and an oversupply in the air. The leaves were not able to give off the water supplied from the roots and stalks, and the congested condition of the leaves and subsequent bursting of the veins was a true type of a dropsical condition .- New York

It is one thing to catch a thief and it is another thing to hold him. During a meeting of the chiefs of police of all the larger cities of the United States and Canada, which occurred at Milwaukee, there were reminiscences of remarkable captures and of escapes which bordered closely upon the miraculous.

"The most remarkable escape from prison that I can recall," said William Pinkerton, "was that of Frank Steadman from the San Quentin prison. But I'll not tell you about it, for here is John Glass, who caught Steadman and sent him back to San Quentin." Chief Glass pinched the brown im perial on his under lip reflectively for a moment before he responded to the looks of inquiry bent upon him by those not familiar with the story.

"The escape to which you refer, Pinkerton, was made after I sent Steadman to San Quentin and not before. I was not the fortunate one to get him after that last wonderful break. And to tell the truth. I have never taken to mysel much credit for taking him the time l did, for it was to a considerable degree a matter of good fortune. You see, we were just at that time keeping our eyes open for a bank robber by the name of Barnes, who had gone into one of the banks out there, covered the one man Evening: "The Popular Man", being who happened to be alone in the place at the time, locked him up in the vault, and then coolly walked out of the bank and out of sight with all the funds he could get his hands on.

"One day a man answering closely the description we had of Barnes stepped off the train at Los Angeles. W took him in tow at once, but found we did not have the bird we were after. However, we managed to hold him Prayer long enough to find out that he was Frank Steadman, who had become notorious even at that time as a successful jail breaker. He had four or five escapes from prison in southern Indiana credit ed to him, had got away from Joliet and had still seven years to do at the Corner of Walnut and Branch Illinois prison; had also been at San Quentin, and had escaped from there with five years unfinished "Steadman was a machinist by profession, and a burglar by inclination to finish his time, he was put to work with other convicts in the engine room. It was here that an idea came into his brain that for absolute daring and fearlessness was typical of the man. He had noticed that every evening at the time the men working in the engine room were lined up to be marched away, the machinery was stopped at exactly the same moment. He had observed as well that a window leading to an adjacent roof was not far from the top of the big driving belt of the engine. From that roof it was possible to reach the onter wall of the prison. Beyond the wall was freedom. He had escaped so many times that his mind reverted again and again to the window high up on the wall of the engine room. Apparently it was beyond all possibility of being reached. No ladder was to be obtained. tiad such a thing in place against the wall, to break from the line and scale it with catlike dexterity, although the work of but a few seconds, he well knew would b futile, possibly fatal. Bullets travel faster than legs, and the guards were not bad shots. But desperate deeds demand desperate means. Some minds may work with an ingenuity born of despair, but Steadman's was of a different caliber. His plans were the outgrowth of steadfast optimism.

'One day there came to him as if by inspiration the thought that the big belt might be the means of carrying him to his goal. Me found that it was impossible to count the revolutions of the driving wheel, but there were lacings in the broad belt, which he was able to distinguish as a sort of blur as it passed a given point. For days and days he counted, and in his cell at night he spent his time in calculations. He discovered the exact number of revolutions the wheel made per minute. He learned also by constant observation just how many times the belt went round after the engine was shut down.

"One evening, when the line had been formed as usual at the close of the day's work and as the big wheel began to lose its momentum, suddenly a convict sprang from the line, leaped to the belt, with cutstretched arms grappling both edges of the broad leather. He ha calculated well the strength that would be required, for the terrific wrench did not loosen his grasp. Ontward and up ward he swung until he reached the topmost point of the circumference. The nicety of his calculation had reaped its reward. The belt stopped. He leaped to his feet, sprang through the window and was gone before convicts or guards $2.00. had recovered from their astonishment. He caught up a guard's coat and hat, dropped from the wall and got away in the dusk of the evening. I am inclined to believe that as a mathematical prope sition that was about as perfect a piec of work as any man ever accomplished. "And did he get away without recapture?" some one asked.

"No, I am almost sorry to say, he did not," answered the Los Angeles chief 'for that ought by rights to be the de nouement of such a story, which combines so much of daring and cleverness. Steadman was taken again in a short time and put to work at his old job There are bars over that high window after this Steadman cut and nearly killed one of the other convicts and is now serving out an additional sentence for remain until the transport Seguranca attempted murder at the Folsom prison, which is situated some 28 miles from Sacramento." The War Is Over

And now our thoughts are all of peace and home. There are, too often, people to be found who have no home, and t is to them these few words are addressed. If you really want a home you can easily get one, but you should act at once before the relapse from the war puts prices on the advance. In Marinette County, Wisconsin, the very finest farming land is to be had now a a most modest figure. Excellent home markets are at hand to take whatever the farmer raises, and good prices are given. These lands are on the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, and ful information concerning them will cheerfully be furnished by C. E. Rollins Immigration Agent, 161 La Salle Street,
